Brexit Round Up Pharma (18th Nov. 2016)

This report will collate all key activity from the last week in Westminster, Whitehall, the European Commission, European Parliament and leading stakeholders as it relates to the energy industry.

In the UK this week, there were reports that the UK Government has prepared a short three-line Bill to begin the Brexit process - so Prime Minister Theresa May can meet her March deadline it has been reported this week. Sources say they believe the legislation is so tightly drawn it will be difficult for critical MPs to amend.

Away from Parliament, Downing Street has "wholeheartedly" rejected comments in a memorandum leaked to the press describing cabinet "divisions" over Brexit. The document, compiled by consultancy firm Deloitte and obtained by the Times newspaper, says Whitehall is working on 500 Brexit-related projects and could need 30,000 extra staff.
